BYU-I Student Wins $529 toward College and a Bonus for Rigby School

(REXBURG)—iDeal— Idaho College Savings Program awarded Samantha Kelly, a BYU-Idaho student a $529 prize on Friday. Kelly was one of three contestants selected by popular vote to win the prize via a social media-driven contest in which participants submitted original videos about their “big dreams” and solicited votes to help them win the prize money. Because Kelly won the most overall votes in the contest, she was also allowed to choose an Idaho public school to receive $529. She chose to award the money to South Fork Elementary in Rigby, where her brothers attend school. iDeal Executive Director Christine Stoll surprised Kelly and her family at South Fork Elementary with a check for $529 on Friday.

Contest entrants were asked to create and upload videos answering the question, “How can college help you achieve your big dream?” In Kelly’s video, she explains that while she works two jobs in the summer, part-time during the school year, and receives academic scholarships, she still struggles to pay all of her expenses. She plans to use the $529 toward graduate school to become a marriage and family counselor.

The contest was part of College Savings Month, a national campaign to encourage families to use 529 college savings accounts like Idaho’s iDeal 529 plan, to facilitate paying for higher education. iDeal is working in concert with other entities around the state to help achieve the Idaho State Board of Education’s goal of seeing 60% of Idahoans aged 25 to 34 possessing a post-secondary degree by the year 2020. A recent study by Washington University in St. Louis revealed that students with a college savings account, no matter what the account balance, are seven times more likely to attend college.

“In talking with Idaho students and families, we’ve learned that one of the biggest barriers to going on to post-secondary education is finding the money to pay for it,” said Christine Stoll, Executive Director of iDeal. “Many families overlook the power of incremental savings and the potential for compounding over time. We hope that seeing these videos will spur more Idaho families to open iDeal accounts and make their ‘Big Dreams’ a reality!”
