2022 IDeal Savers - Central Idaho

Sweesy

Jill and her husband, Jerod, started an IDeal savings account for their son, Karsten, when he was only six months old. Karsten is now fourteen and college is a few years away, but they have already seen the benefits of his IDeal account. Their son has always attended K-12 private school, so they used the money in his IDeal account to pay for his private school tuition when it became a qualified education expense. Starting this year, Karsten can use his IDeal funds to take dual credit classes through Boise State University. He anticipates having a year of college courses finished before he graduates high school. Jill and Jerod have also enjoyed the tax advantages and automatic direct deposits. They taught Karsten that it's better to save money and make interest than borrow money and pay interest. He took the lesson to heart and has already started putting money into his IDeal account from his first job that he recently started.
